Inspirate dalla Natura

Inspired by Nature

Le nostre collezioni classiche nascono da una vera passione per la pietra naturale e ogni giorno abbiamo il privilegio di condividere il nostro lavoro con clienti e progettisti che sposino la nostra filosofia legata alla semplicità e al fascino dei materiali naturali applicati all'architettura.

Alla base del nostro lavoro c'è la tradizione millenaria della lavorazione dell'ardesia che ha origine nell'entroterra di Lavagna in epoca romana. La pietra viene ancora oggi spaccata a mano da esperti maestri artigiani, secondo la tradizione.

A queste lavorazioni manuali, in 40 anni di attività, Artesia ha affiancato le più moderne tecnologie per calibrare e rettificare le pietre e renderle facili da posare come una normale piastrella, pur mantenendo il fascino inimitabile della vera pietra naturale a spacco di cava. Se richiesto dal progetto, Artesia è anche in grado di offrire finiture più ricercate da applicare alla superficie per renderla più morbida o levigata. Potete approfondire l'argomento nella sezione dedicata. I formati disponibili sono moltissimi ed è possibile un alto grado di personalizzazione perché non vogliamo limitare la creatività nell'utilizzo della pietra e per noi il contributo dei progettisti è molto importante per la nostra evoluzione e lo sviluppo delle idee. Per dare un servizio ancora più completo, su alcune finiture viene perfino compreso uno speciale trattamento antimacchia e cera protettiva. Le pietre vengono consegnate perfettamente pulite e imballate in scatole di cartone da circa 1 M2. Non vogliamo vincolare i nostri clienti e quindi l'ordine minimo è di 1 M2.

Realizzare i progetti utilizzando Artesia è semplice e immediato perché forniamo un prodotto finito, pronto da posare e facile da pulire.

Our classical collections come from a true passion for natural stone. Every day we have the privilege of sharing our work with customers and designers who embrace our philosophy linked to the simplicity and charm of the natural materials applied to architecture.

Our work is based on the millennial tradition of the processing of slate which originates in the hinterland of Lavagna in the Roman era. Even today the stone is split by hand by expert craftsmen according to tradition. In 40 years of business, Artesia combined this manual work with the most modern technologies to calibrate and rectify stones to make them easy to lay like a normal tile, though maintaining the unique appeal of true natural quarry-split rock. If required by the design, Artesia is capable of offering more refined finishes to apply to the surface making it more soft or polished. You can examine the topic in depth in the dedicated section on page. There very many formats available which can be customised as you wish, as we do not want to limit creativity in using the stone and the contribution of designers is extremely important for us in our evolution and in the development of our ideas. To make the service even more complete, some finishes also include a special treatment with an anti-stain product and protective wax. The stones are delivered perfectly clean and packed in cardboard boxes approximately 1 M2. We do not want to limit our customers and therefore the minimum order is 1 M2.

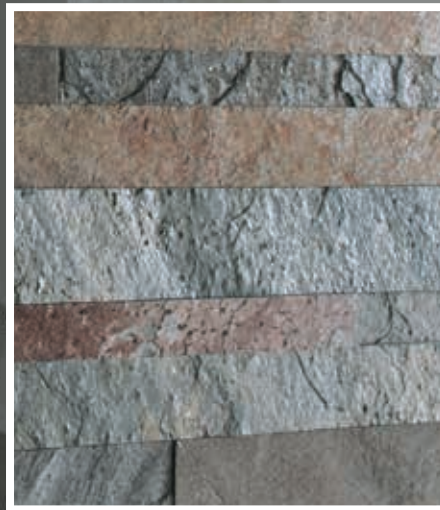

Making projects with Artesia is simple and immediate because we supply a finished product, ready to lay and easy to clean.
